Who am I?

- Open Archaeobotanist
- Community Manager at The Alan Turing Institute and contributor to The Turing Way

What I'm working on at the moment

- Assessing open science practices in Phytolith Research
- OLS-2 project - raising awareness
- FAIRification project
- Open reference collections

Plan for the SSI Fellowship - Improving accessibility to open research skills and tools

1. Development of workshop on open science skills and collaborative working for archaeologists/palaeoecologists
2. Working with The Turing Way on accessibility to research skills and reproducible workflows
3. Promoting open sustainable ways of working using collaborative tools such as Github

1. Development of workshop on open science skills and collaborative working for archaeologists and palaeoecologists

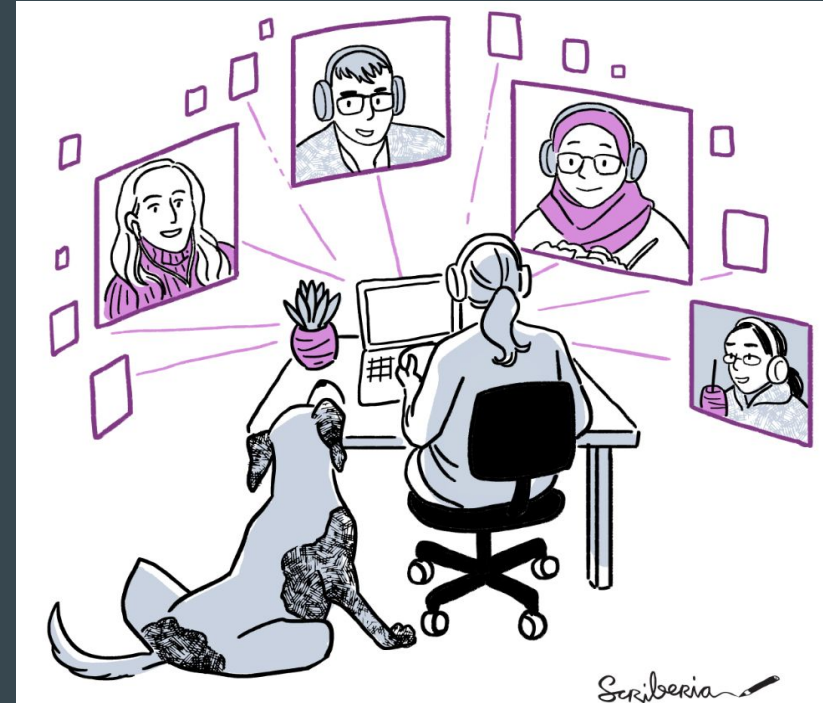

- Filling the open science skills gap in a subject specific way
- Focus on collaborative working tools such as Github

2. Working with The Turing Way on accessibility to research skills and reproducible workflows

- Continue work on revising ‘Guide to collaboration’
- Adding to the expansion of the book for research scientists
- Capturing Open Workflows - modeling workflows using videos from contributors
